Lonnie Harrington

Guitarist, percussionist, singer, and songwriter Lonnie Harrington has been strumming, hitting, and singing his way throughout the eastern U.S. and Canada for more than 45 years, spanning many musical genres, including rock, soul, R&B, worldbeat, and Native American styles. He has been a member of Grooves of the Hemisphere (with Ruben Gonzalez) and Kandia Crazy Horse's Cactus Rose, and was a guest on Martha Redbone's album Garden of Love. He also sings regularly with several New York City Native American Drum Groups. His album Northern Tropicales and Other Romantic Illusions was released in 2017. ### Tom De Rosa

De Rosa's style is influenced by classic rock greats, old-time blues legends, and unique life experiences, resulting in a deeply expressive and dynamic Americana sound. Tom grew up in a working-class family in Queens and first picked up the guitar in his early 20s after going blind. He found composing music and lyrics to be a great creative outlet and a significant way to cope with the loss of his vision. His solo guitar sets are captivating mixes of his own compositions with songs from Dylan and Leonard Cohen. reverbnation.com/DeRosaTheBand

The Infiltrators

The Infiltrators are a Punk Rock Oi! band from Los Sures, the South Side of Williamsburg, Brooklyn. Founded in 1997, they infiltrated the street rock scene and made waves for their fast and frenetic shows. They recorded several 45s and a CD in the '90s and are now working on a new series of records. The current members of the band are Denis Sinned, vocals; Carlos Rosello, guitar and vocals; Danny Robo, drums; and Rob Strange, bass. ### Fred Arcoleo & Friends

Fred Arcoleo serves up an amalgam of blues, folk, pop, and Latin traditions that will take root and grow inside you. Fred cites Bruce Cockburn, Tracy Chapman, and Victor Jara as influences on his music. When not performing, he teaches English, writing, and art at George Washington High School. ### 6G Night: 3 Guys + 3 Guitars in the Round

Tom Smith

Tom grew up in rural Pennsylvania in a family where music was part of the fabric of everyday life, and also experienced the folk-quake of the Cambridge music scene of the '60s. He is a well-traveled singer/songwriter veteran who brings a rich and deep portfolio of finely crafted songs delivered in a tastefully understated fashion and a dry wit guaranteed to put a smile on any face. tomsmithmusic.com

Gary Allard

Gary Allard is a soulful contemporary singer-songwriter. He continues to build his unique sound by extracting inspiration from a plethora of genres including pop, folk, gospel, R&B, and Caribbean music. He composes his lyrics from his own personal and social experiences, striving to connect with his audience through tender yet powerful emotional singing. #### Joshua Garcia

Joshua Garcia is a folk-singer-songwriter whose music and writing style draw from the influences of his musical heroes Woody Guthrie, Bob Dylan, and Johnny Cash. He sings in a strong, confident baritone that harks back to the more purposeful voices of earlier folk, and his guitar picking is fluent in several bluesy styles. Born and raised in Los Angeles, Joshua now resides in Astoria, Queens. soundcloud.com/joshuagarciamusic
