Goldee Greene

Internationally acclaimed vocalist and pianist Goldee Greene ably weaves eclectic strands of jazz, R&B, opera and more, delivered in a resonant soprano. She is also an actress, and played the lead role in Urban Bush Women's luminescent dance musical Praise House, about the life of the visionary painter Minnie Evans. goldeegreene.com

Kevin Nathaniel & Friends

Kevin Nathaniel brings a healing resonance into the atmosphere with magical sounds. Tonight the healing resonance will be magnified by all hearts present. Join us as we celebrate life together, sing together, dance together in a healing resonance that flows into the world and beyond. Kevin is freshly returned from a healing music tour of London, bringing new ideas from the journey to open more chapters in the medicinal, magical, mystical world of music. kevinnathaniel.com

Full Participation Is a Human Right

Tonight's concert is part of the Full Participation Is a Human Right conference, focusing on the impact of the criminal punishment system. Please note that the concert will be upstairs in the church. full-participation.org

Dilson Hernandez

Dilson is a poet, singer, multi-instrumentalist, and engineer from the Bronx. He seeks to change the world, striving for a more progressive and creative future. He works with New York City youth as a teaching artist with Urban Art Beat and Friends of Island Academy, an organization providing services to youth at Rikers Island. He has also taught English in Haiti and helped build a dorm space for children in rural India. facebook.com/dilson.hernandez dilsonmusic.wordpress.com

Ben Grosscup

Ben's powerful voice and energetic guitar style inspire action toward a freer society. His songs pull at your heart and provoke laughter and critical conversation, making no apology for a biting critique of the social order. He sings at concerts, rallies, and picket lines and works with peace and social justice organizers to raise political consciousness and help people sing together for a common purpose. Based in Greenfield, MA, Ben is executive director of People's Music Network, a diverse community of singers, artists, activists, and allies that cultivates cultural work as a catalyst for a just and peaceful world. facebook.com/bengrosscupmusic

Thea Hopkins

Thea Hopkins calls her music American Short Story Folk: concise, striking narratives casting romance and tragedy in modern terms. Her crisp, clear voice blends gorgeous, sustained tones with blues and country inflections, sultry and sensuous, playful and serious. Her classic "Jesus Is on the Wire" became a hit for Peter, Paul & Mary, and she has won an award from American Songwriter Magazine and a fellowship from the Native Arts and Culture Foundation. Thea's newest CD, Love Come Down, is a seamless journey that begins with a gentle invocation and ends with a lullaby, with a few dark American landscapes in between. theahopkins.com

Marie Mularczyk O'Connell & The Mountain Maidens

Three dynamic voices blend ancient and modern harmonies that will lift your spirit and excite your senses: ballads, folk songs, love songs, Medieval, Irish, country, and gospel. They met at an Irish pub where they were singing for St. Patrick's Day. Marie plays guitar, banjo, mandolin, dulcimer, Irish bouzouki, dumbec, bones, and spoons and sings British and American folksongs and Jewish music. Candice Baranello is a member of Wild Ginger. She plays dulcimer, washboard, and bodhran and sings traditional, Old Timey, classical, and gospel. Lorraine sings alto with the Huntington Choral Society and plays guitar, flamenco castanets, and dance board.

Aaron Fowler

Born a city boy from Kansas, Aaron finds inspiration in the hard-working folks across this country—farmer, teacher, nurse, factory worker, urban and rural families, all making this country great. Aaron unites a polished finger style and rhythm guitar playing with a warm tenor voice to sing songs of passion and purpose, of common folks bringing uncommon stories to life. aaronfowler.org

Joel Landy

Joel Landy has been an activist his entire life. His music has been published in Sing Out! and heard on Pacifica Radio stations. His long-running cable/internet show, Songs of Freedom, has won national acclaim. He is best known, however, for creative and energetic stage performances in New York City coffeehouses and demonstration stages throughout the country. From corporate media and class warfare to climate chaos and the NRA, Joel delivers intelligent songs with wit and humor in a style reminiscent of a young Phil Ochs. "He's a real live wire!"—Pete Seeger. singfreedom.org
